

A CONVERSATION ABOUT FAITH BECOMING PERSONAL

Three months into dating, we found out we were pregnant. In Bible college.

Beneath the practical fear was a deeper one: would our son ever believe he was a mistake? That question changed the way we parented - and eventually became a bigger question.

THE QUESTION AT THE HEART OF THE EPISODE

How do you help a child know God for themselves - not simply inherit a secondhand faith?

WHERE THE CONVERSATION CAN GO

- THE UNPLANNED BEGINNING
How we worked to ensure 'unplanned' never became 'unwanted' in our son's heart.
- WHEN FAITH FEELS BORROWED
The difference between knowing Christian answers and knowing the Person for yourself.
- WHAT REMAINS WHEN THEY WANDER
What our son's years away from church taught us about belonging, identity, and encounter.

WHAT LISTENERS WILL LEAVE WITH

- A SMALL PRACTICE FOR TONIGHT
A repeatable bedtime rhythm for making the Father's love personal in a parent's trusted voice.
- RELIEF FROM PERFECT PARENTING
Why repair, presence, and returning to truth matter more than always saying the perfect thing.
- A DIFFERENT STARTING POINT
Begin with who God is and who the child is in His eyes - then address what happened.

HOST INTRO

Batsirai and Aimee Chada are parents, church leaders, and cofounders of AlreadyLoved. Their unexpected beginning - and their family's journey through faith, questions, and return - shaped their mission to help Christian parents make the Father's love personal so children can know God for themselves.
